Illinois' citizens must have the skills to compete. Computer skills are already required for nearly every job. The good high-paying jobs being created now require computer skills even more. Unfortunately, not all of Illinois' citizens have access to a computer at home or at school.

- Less than one in four minority low-income families have a computer and Internet access at home.
- Many inner-city and rural schools cannot afford equipment to create needed computer access.
- Lack of access to computers is creating a "digital divide" between those who grow up with the new technology and those who don't.

You can help to "bridge" the digital divide! Please fill out the back of this card and make a small contribution to help equip Illinois schools, libraries, park districts, and other community technology centers to provide access to computers and training for youths and other low-income Illinois residents meeting tomorrow's challenges.
